

Favorable Majority in Senate Assures Bonus Despite FDR Opposition

WASHINGTON—Behind the din and clatter of the bonus free-for-all stand out two salient facts:

1. That for the first time since the issue of immediate payment was raised there is a favorable majority in the Senate. This means that sooner or later a bonus bill will become law regardless of Presidential opinion.

2. That the Senate's action in rejecting the Harrison compromise and the Legion-backed Vinson bill in favor of the Patman measure unwittingly pulled Roosevelt out of a bad hole. This seeming paradox is made clear by an explanation of what took place on this issue behind the scenes.

A group of leading Senate Democrats—chief among them Robinson, Harrison and Byrnes—came up for re-election next year. Privately they are opposed to the bonus.

But they face difficult contests. So they decided on a strategy.

"They would climb on the bandwagon—but their kind of wagon."

They evolved the so-called Harrison compromise, under which the veterans would have received a portion of the face value of their certificates.

This scheme they laid before the President. And although he is against the bonus, the Senate leaders understood that he agreed to accept the Harrison plan if Congress passed it.

Hence it was that when the Senate, much to the pained surprise of its authors, turned thumbs down on the Harrison compromise, the President found the chamber had done him a great favor.

It had saved him from making good on a promise that was not only distasteful to him but was of very questionable political value.

The compromise would not have satisfied the veterans and in accepting it the President would have laid himself open to the charge by bonus foes that he had bowed to political expediency.

Likewise, the Senate's turn down of the Vinson bill played into his hand.

He would have vetoed the measure. But because of its Legion backing rejection would not have been easy. Furthermore, there was a strong likelihood that he would have taken a licking in Congress, with the bill passed over his head.

The enactment of the Patman proposal created an entirely different situation.

The Legion is on record against this bill. Also, it is first an inflationary and only secondly a bonus measure. Which explains why some of the inner circle strategists are calling it "Roosevelt Lucky Break No. 1."

Berlin Embassy

One factor in the delicate European situation which continually worries the State Department is the weakness of the American Embassy in Berlin.

Ambassador Dodd, ever since he criticized the Nazis in a speech, has been cordially disliked, gets little inside information as to what is going on. His staff is considered one of the weakest in Europe. The State Department has been looking around for a good career diplomat who can bolster it up.

Outwitted

"This," smilingly whispered Senator Bennett Clark to a colleague. "This is going to be good. George Norris is about to 'take' Austin."

As Clark spoke Norris rose from his seat.

"Mr. President," he said. "I move the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. 2357."

RUMOR RELIEF NEAR SHOWDOWN

DAVEY SEEKS WIDE POWERS FROM SOLONS

"Ripper Bill" Giving Governor Many Privileges Filed in House

HANDED TO UIBLE

Would Amend Civil Service Statutes

COLUMBUS, May 15—Closing hours of the 91st Ohio General assembly's regular session were enlivened today by the unexpected introduction of Gov. Martin L. Davey's bill to give him blanket authority to revamp the state government for the announced purpose of economy.

Carrying an appropriation of $50,000 to the governor to defray costs he might incur in abolishing unessential jobs, bureaus and commissions and in consolidating overlapping governmental functions, the reorganization measure, termed the "Ripper bill" by Davey critics, was tossed into the House hopper by Democratic Floor Leader Frank Utley.

Seek Early Vote

It was introduced contrary to the advice of several administration leaders who thought the House in no mood at this time to grant Davey the broad powers he requests. It was referred at once to committee with the hope of bringing it to a vote tomorrow on the floor of the House and Senate.

Besides giving the governor authority to make any changes he deems necessary in the administrative branch, the Uible bill requires all other elective state officials, the secretary of state, auditor, treasurer and attorney general to conduct surveys in their own departments similar to that now under way in the executive department by Col. C. O. Sherrill and his 120 trained office managers.

While the bill specifies that these additional surveys must be completed by a date to be fixed by the governor, it apparently does not give the latter authority to order a reduction in personnel or the consolidation of office outside of his own administrative department.

Gives Wide Powers

It proposes to amend the civil service law as it applies to the executive branch by subjecting its application to the approval of the governor. It gives him the power to abolish by executive order "unnecessary positions held by employees or officers and to abolish and consolidate bureaus, commissions and departments."

The governor also would be empowered to reduce or abolish appropriations made for any position

REPORTER REFUSES TO REVEAL SOURCE OF NEWS, ARRESTED

NEW YORK, May 15—Martin Mooney, New York American reporter sentenced to thirty days in jail for refusing to reveal his news sources on the city's vice and gambling situation, will continue to refuse to answer the disputed questions, his lawyer said today.

Mooney's appearance before a general sessions judge to answer the contempt charges revealed that Jimmy Hines, veteran Tammany leader, had been named as one to whom certain gamblers appealed after arrest.

Mooney was called by the grand jury to tell about a series of articles he had written on vice and gambling.

HEAVY RAINS SET RECORD

Dr. Clarke Reports 6.45 Inches in 15 Days; More Than in 1913

Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather man, announced today that more rain has fallen in Circleville the first 15 days of May than even at the time of the 1913 flood.

Dr. Clarke has been Circleville's government weather man for a number of years but he declared today that in his entire tenure of office he cannot recall any month in which rain has been so intense as the first half of May.

The total so far this month is 6.45 inches.

"The rains, while doing a lot to replenish the underground supply, have generally retarded corn planting by two weeks. Farmers are becoming anxious for clearing weather which will permit them to work their ground and get their corn planted."

Streams throughout the county are running bank full while several have overflowed into the bottom land. The Scioto river was just a little above the 6-foot mark today, Dr. Clarke reported.

RELIEF MEN ASSAIL IRWIN

COLUMBUS, May 15—A committee of 10 men, representing more than 500 unemployed relief workers, and the vice president of the Ohio Unemployed League were to deliver an ultimatum from Charles C. Stillman, federal relief administrator for Ohio, to the Pickaway-co commissioners today in an effort to restore federal relief in the county.

A squadron of about 300 Pickaway-co relief workers yesterday filed into Columbus after "hiking" 26 miles from Circleville, the county seat, to present their arguments to Gov. Martin L. Davey and Stillman. These 300 relief "hunger-marchers" came in protest to the method by which the commissioners of that county were handling the relief situation.

Mention to Committee

Gov. Davey promised then he would mention the relief situation of the county to his legislative relief investigation committee and suggest they make a survey of the actual set-up in the county.

Continuous efforts by William Truax of Columbus, president of the Ohio Unemployed League and spokesman for the committee, to obtain a promise from the chief executive that the commissioners would be impeached if further trouble developed from the situation proved futile.

Davey stated, however, that the state of Ohio would take no hand in the case except a possible investigation by his relief committee.

The marchers, having gained little in their conference with the governor, then proceeded to march to Stillman's office. Here they met with marked progress.

Truax presented the problem that now confronts the "marchers" to Stillman, stating that Pickaway-co relief rolls contained 725 families each of whom was to get $11.33 per month from the federal relief administration. They claimed, that under Howard S. Irwin's county relief directorship, they seldom received more than $1.50 per week.

The committee told Stillman they had the backing of more than 600 relief workers in the county for the dismissal of Irwin. (Two weeks ago, Stillman ordered Winfred T. Utley, Cleveland, to replace Irwin but the Pickaway county commissioners refused to accept Utley and sent him back to Columbus).

Stillman said he was willing to co-operate and would send anyone acceptable to the commissioners to replace Irwin, whose work the FERA maintains was entirely unsatisfactory.

The committee, comprised of Fred Wing of Deer Creek-twp; E. H. Rhodes of Circleville, William Caudill of Circleville, Mose Rutter of Circleville, Daniel Gilmore of Gilmore, B. O. Conner of Williamsport, George Seymour, Circleville, J. W. Tagg of Circleville, Ed Jones of Williamsport, and William Walker of Ashville, averred that the county relief administration had received $500 in FERA funds to cultivate garden plots for the workers.

These plots, they continued, were never planted.

The Ohio relief administration then said, "If Utley is unsatisfactory to the commissioners, we are willing to send someone else, but we will not place federal funds in Pickaway-co while Howard Irwin is county director."

Return in Trucks

After promising to visit the county commissioners today to present Stillman's decision, the "marchers" were escorted to their homes in National Guard trucks furnished by the state.

During their stay overnight here, the marchers maintained they had but one sandwich apiece Monday evening and nothing yesterday until noon, when the city of Columbus furnished them with food.

The contingent came to Columbus with but four automobiles and two trucks to carry the women and children, the men walked practically all the way from Circleville here.

THREE CONFER ON ISSUE WITH FEDERAL CHIEF

Stillman Ready to Send New Director, Not Utley, Into County

OPPOSED TO IRWIN

500 Sign Petition of Local Director

Rumors were flying thick and fast in Circleville and Pickaway-co today relative to the relief controversy with a Chamber of Commerce committee of three in Columbus this afternoon to interview C. C. Stillman, relief administrator, to learn what can be done to right the situation.

In the delegation were Karl Herrmann, Reed Shafer and Frank Lynch, all active Chamber of Commerce members. Their appointment with Stillman was scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Discussed By C. of C.

The decision to have a committee visit the administrator's office was made Tuesday evening when 35 Chamber of Commerce members and guests took part in a discussion of the relief question. Relief Director Howard Irwin, fired by Stillman but supported by the commissioners, was present and took part in the discussion.

A motion to have the Chamber of Commerce go on record in favor of Mr. Irwin for re-appointment as relief director was withdrawn after discussion when it was deemed advisable to have a committee investigate the difficulty.

Circulating his petition since about 11 a. m. Tuesday Mr. Irwin reported today that he had 500 signers urging his appointment under Stillman. "Farmers, ministers, lawyers, doctors, merchants, FERA employees, and in fact, persons from every walk of life are represented on the petition," Mr. Irwin reported. He also reported that none of the persons signing the petition are in favor of direct cash relief as advocated by Stillman. The relief director, who has handled Pickaway-co aid for 10 months, expressed thanks for the support given him.

May Settle Question

It was reported with good authority that Burr H. Rader, chairman of the commissioners' board, declared Tuesday that "if the government is ready to step in and handle everything without the county having to expend any of its money, then let them go ahead." Mr. Rader was at his farm near Ashville today and could not be reached for a statement concerning the report.

It is believed that is just what Mr. Stillman wants to do; send a federal director here to spend only federal money under the cash relief system. Unless Mr. Rader has been misquoted it is thought the entire squabble might be settled within a day or so with Stillman sending a new director here.

He declared Tuesday that he was willing to send a new director here suitable to the commissioners and that it would not be W. L. Utley, whom the commissioners rejected last week. Neither would the director be Mr. Irwin, Stillman said.

The question is: "How can Pickaway-co get federal relief money without Irwin losing his job and without cash relief being put into effect?" The answer, boiled down to few words, was: "Not at all." Stillman is insisting that Irwin not direct expenditure of any federal money and that if a new director does come here cash relief will be put into effect.

Uses Many Outsiders

As far as an outsider directing Pickaway-co relief is concerned, Stillman merely points to a number of other counties in Ohio where a similar system is being used. Out-of-the-county administrators can be found in many counties.

Stillman in his statement that Irwin could not be appointed director said: "We have felt that Mr. Irwin was not functioning to our satisfaction, that's why we sent another man."

Another angle crept into the controversy Tuesday when George W. Barrere, state examiner, and another examiner whose name was not learned informed Auditor Forrest Short that he should pay out

HOLL'S TALK PRAISES C. C.

Manager of Logan Chamber of Commerce Outlines Its Activities

The Chamber of Commerce enjoyed an interesting meeting Tuesday evening with several important issues discussed and an enlightening address made by Barton Holl. About 35 members attended.

J. I. Smith, Jr. and Joe Burns talked on the rejuvenation of the Athletic club; Joe W. Adkins, Jr. outlined the plan for a city park project, and a committee was named by President Karl Herrmann to work with C. F. Zaenglein on the possibility of conducting band concerts here this summer. The committee includes W. E. Wallace, chairman; H. W. Plum and Ben H. Gordon.

Members Organization

Mr. Holl, named after the late Barton Walters, is manager of the Logan Chamber of Commerce, one of the most active organizations in Ohio.

He explained the objectives of a Chamber of Commerce to assist the industries the community already has before it goes after new ones. "An organization," he said, "is judged not by the speed it is going but by the direction in which it is traveling. We measure the results of our work in the payrolls of our industries. We try to get business for our industries."

Mr. Holl outlined a membership drive his organization recently conducted in which 62 members were added to a list of 100 already enrolled. The local organization has 56 members. Mr. Holl said Circleville should be able to add 100 members.

Mr. Herrmann named standing committees for the years as follows:

Finance: Durward Dowden, chairman; W. E. Crist and Mack Noggle.

Legislative: R. L. Brehmer, chairman; Meeker Terwilliger, and Clark Will.

Membership: Harry Steinhauer, chairman; Mack Parrett, Jr. and Joe Burns.

2,340 Return to Jobs in Toledo; Others Agree to Accept Terms

TOLEDO, May 15—Peace returned today to the automobile industry.

The 2,340 employees of the Toledo Chevrolet Motors corp. plants who walked out April 23, signaling a strike that eventually threw 33,000 General Motors Corp. workers into unemployment, returned to their jobs today.

The Cleveland Fisher Body Co. plant, largest General Motors unit closed by the Toledo strike and Cleveland's largest employer, resumed operations. Only a few hundred men returned there today but Lincoln B. Scafe, the plant's general manager, said the full 8,600 persons working when the plant closed April 30 would be back at their jobs by Friday night.

United Auto Workers' federal union members at the Flint, Mich., Buick Motor Car Co. plant, who were to have walked out yesterday, agreed to accept the bargaining terms of the Toledo settlement and remained at their posts. Olaf Hanson, union president, said the union there will open negotiations with the company management for readjustment of wages, hours and working conditions.

Other General Motors units in Norwood, O., near Cincinnati; Atlanta; Janesville, Wis.; St. Louis; Kansas City; Fort Smith, Ark., and Baltimore, all affected by the Toledo strike, either resumed operations today or were preparing to reopen, according to reports received here.

HOUSE SHOWING SPEED, TAKES UP FINANCE MEASURE

MILK CONTROL PLAN 'KILLED'; REFUND VOTED

Home Rule Proposals Defeated By Close Ballot In Assembly

COLUMBUS, May 15—Breezing along at unaccustomed speed, the Ohio house of representatives today was to take up consideration of the big biennial appropriations bill.

After defeating the Carey milk control bill, the House revived and passed the Lawrence Senate bond refund bill, substitute for the rejected Davey bond moratorium, and concurred in the Waldvogel Senate bill revising Ohio's liquor control act.

The Carey bill, pictured by the special House milk investigating committee as guaranteeing a fair profit to producers, went down to defeat by a vote of 46 to 70. Sentiment in the House appeared to be against enacting any legislation to regulate the milk industry, with the result that there will be no state control after the Burk act expires on June 30, unless the lawmakers quickly change their minds.

Could Refund Bonds

Under the Lawrence bill, which now returns to the Senate for concurrence in amendments made by the House, local subdivisions could refund maturing bonds, using sinking fund revenue set aside for their maturity to pay current operating expenses. Once defeated it passed the second time out by a vote of 87 to 23.

The Waldvogel liquor bill, approved by a vote of 100 to 6, likewise must go back to the Senate for acceptance of numerous House amendments before it reaches the governor.

Most of today's session was expected to be consumed by debate on the $53,000,000 general appropriations bill. Word reached House leaders that the Senate will not act on this measure until the last day of the session, May 23.

It had been assumed no business would be transacted by

Increases Fees

Perhaps the most important amendment written into the Waldvogel liquor measure by the House was sponsored by Rep. Edmund Deibel (R) Medina. It increases all liquor permit fees $10 a year and allocates the increase as well as all profit made by the state liquor monopoly, to the old age pension fund.

Deibel explained that since liquor dealers, except wholesalers, will no longer be required to post bond which now costs them no less than $10, the increased permit fees actually will not be a new burden on them. In this manner he hopes to raise $200,000 a year for pensions, while he anticipated another $3,000,000 next year from liquor profits.

Republican Floor Leader Myron Gessaman spiked an attempt to write into the Waldvogel bill a clause designed to permit Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson, new member of the state liquor board, to hold that position and be a member of the Dayton board of education simultaneously.

Outlining changes in the liquor act made by the Waldvogel bill, Rep. Sidney Hesse (D) Cleveland declared they are designed to remedy a number of unfair situations; provide better enforcement and protect Ohio wine growers.

County home rule leaders suffered a severe set-back when the House, voting 57 to 52, defeated the Campbell Senate bill, backbone of their program. It would have set up three alternative forms of county government for counties which elected to change from the present uniform system.

'RAY' TO STOP PLANES AIRED

Marconi, Inventor of Wireless, Working On Destructive Radio Ray

LONDON, May 15—Dramatic possibilities of a new type of aerial warfare, with planes rendered helpless in flight by destructive radio rays, gripped the public imagination today.

From Berlin and Rome came reports hinting at progress in this field of experimentation. Utmost secrecy surrounded tests carried out by Senator Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless, before Premier Mussolini in the Italian capital, but it was rumored they concerned a device to cripple airplane engines in flight.

At the same time, a Berlin dispatch to the Evening News declared a young Bavarian scientist had successfully demonstrated a ray capable of disabling the ignition system of an airplane engine two miles away.

The ray, it was said, is capable of melting the entire magnet of an airplane within two minutes, and can be transmitted directionally in the manner of a beam wireless.

Any normal type of screening system can be penetrated, the dispatch said, and the only way to protect planes from the ray would be to fit aircraft with Diesel engines of the compression type without a magneto.

A drama written for professional players, a splendid cast ably directed, and effective scenery—all will blend together to make "The Youngest" (Senior class play) one of the best dramas ever presented from the stage of Circleville high school.

From the pen of Philip Barry, this play describes the trials and tribulations of the youngest who is down trodden by members of his family.

The stage crew has worked hard to make the setting come up to the high standard of the play.

DAVEY SIGNS EIGHT BILLS

COLUMBUS, May 15—Eight bills passed by the state legislature, including the Richards Act, extending the open-season on fox, were signed today by Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Under the Richards act, fox may be taken between Nov. 15 and March 1. At present the season is January 1.

The Waldvogel senate bill, approved by Davey, permits political subdivisions to contract for supplies up to $50 without having to require affidavits of NRA compliance from dealers.

Other bills approved by the governor, included:

Rep. Carey—relating to the employment of county health officers.

Sen. Hunter—permitting levies outside the ten-mill limitation for municipal universities.

Sen. Waldvogel—requiring all public works projects to be supervised by professional civil engineers.

Sen. Mathews—empowering the superintendent of insurance and his assistant to administer oaths and compel attendance of witnesses.

Sen. Mathews—preventing life insurance companies from doing business in Ohio by letter or otherwise unless licensed in this state.

Sen. Waldvogel—broadening the field of investments for life insurance companies.

RECORD SWIM ATTEMPT MELBOURNE.—To swim three miles or more a day for a year is the strange record sought by Geoffrey Gillam, a young Victorian swimmer. There has been much argument over whether what Gillam is trying is beyond the limit of human endurance. He has just completed the first three weeks and is perfectly fit.

MRS. WAITES, OF CEDAR HILL DIES

Burial will be in Amanda-twp cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

DENY HENDERSON TO DIRECT RELIEF

COLUMBUS, May 15—Reports that Frank D. Henderson, former adjutant general, would be returned as relief director for Ohio have met with denials from three sources. Henderson, C. C. Stillman and Aubrey Williams, assistant relief chief, all denied they knew anything about it.

All powers and duties vested in an office abolished would be transferred to the head of the department in which the office existed or to the elective state officer in whose office such positions existed.

One section requires boards of trustees of all educational or welfare institutions supported in whole or in part by the state to conduct surveys with a view to reducing expenses along the lines prescribed by the governor for the executive branch.

Those familiar with the reorganization bill put through the Indiana legislature recently by Gov. Paul McNutt said the Davey measure followed it closely in many respects.

Colonel Sherrill has promised to file his recommendations with the governor by June 1. His corps of efficiency experts, all loaned to the governor by their employers presumably at no cost to the state, has been at work for many weeks.

in one of the most gruelling tests ever given an automobile... makes clean sweep up to and beyond 1000 miles

1000-mile record beats best mark ever set by any closed car

NEWS FLASH—Muroc Lake, Cal., April 13—36 official A.A.A. records broken by a stock Hudson Eight. Top speed—over 93 miles an hour for five miles. Average speed—over 85 miles an hour for 1000 miles and beyond. A clean sweep of every record in its class up to and including 1000 miles and 3000 kilometers, and four unlimited class closed car records. Electrical timing correct to a millionth part of a second and every record certified by American Automobile Association.

Here's what it means to you. Probably you'll never care to drive a car five miles at 93 miles an hour. Yet, it means a lot to you to have a car that can go that fast—to shoot out of traffic tangles or flash you out ahead on the highway.

It isn't likely you'll want to drive a thousand-mile stretch at 85 miles an hour, but you do want a car with the fine engineering, power and ruggedness it takes to do this. Ordinary driving is no work at all for a car like this.

That's what it means to own a Hudson—smoother miles, more enjoyable miles—plus ruggedness and gasoline economy that make those miles cost less. You can see and drive an exact duplicate of this record-breaking Hudson Eight at any Hudson showroom. You can also see the complete list of these 36 new records, and scores of others held by Hudson-built cars. Take the wheel today and discover what this record-breaking performance means to you.

Miss Evelyn Adkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Adkins, W. Union-st., and Mr. J. Ralph Morris, son of Mrs. J. M. Morris and the late Mr. Morris of Columbus, formerly of this city, exchanged vows at 6:30 o'clock, Tuesday evening, at an impressive home wedding.

Rev. Franklin McElfresh, of Columbus, former pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church, read the nuptials at the home of the bride's parents before an impressive array of dogwood and candelabra in the living room. Only members of the two immediate families were present.

Mrs. Paul Adkins, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. Donald Morris, of Chillicothe, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride was attractive in a long white lace dress fashioned shirt-maker front with eton collar. The buttons on the front of the waist were brilliant. In lieu of a veil she wore a coronet of real lace and carried an arm bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

A buffet supper followed the ceremony after which the couple left for a two weeks' trip south.

For traveling Mrs. Morris wore a becoming black Del Monte-Hickey suit with a white crepe blouse, white crepe hat and white gloves.

Upon return from their wedding trip they will be at home to their friends at 1550 Clifton-ave, Columbus.

The bride is a graduate of Circleville high school and attended Sullins College for Women in Virginia and Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware.

Mr. Morris is associated with the Bell Telephone and American Telephone and Telegraph Cos. in Columbus.

PATTERN 5354

What is more flattering than a soft crocheted collar especially if it is as lacy as these! The round one with the ruffled frill will add that touch that makes a dress alluringly feminine. The collar with the jabot is a very simple one to do—open spaces with stripes of popcorns for contrast. And the jabot has a soft fullness that makes it very lovely. The round collar will add distinction to any dress. The latter is effective in string; the other two are lovely in a somewhat finer cotton.

In pattern 5354 you will find complete instructions for making the collars shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main St., Circleville, O.

Barbara, Titled Husband Honeymooning in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—Barbara Hutton, the $40,000,000 "five-and-ten" heiress who was transformed in a day from a princess to a countess, honeymooned atop San Francisco's nob hill today with her new husband, handsomely Count Court Maugwitz-Reventlow of Denmark.

The titled pair descended upon San Francisco last night after crossing the Sierras in an auto caravan that swept in feudal style from Reno, where Barbara won a divorce from Prince Alexis Mdivani and married the count who had sped from Denmark to claim his bride.

The newlyweds, arriving in San Francisco in fog and mist, the curtains of their limousine shielding them from interviewers, drove immediately to the exclusive hotel Mark Hopkins, where they had reserved a palatial suite.

Crowd Kept Back

The count and his dazzling bride laughingly hid their faces as they ran up the hotel steps, while motorcycle policemen kept small crowd of curious at a distance.

A few hours later they appeared in evening splendor, to dine and dance until after midnight in the hotel's Peacock court.

A large crowd of friends and well-wishers greeted "Babs" and her count when they descended to the lobby.

Enroute to the dining room, the count paused to remark he would now pay off bets made with New York newspapermen that he would not marry within a year.

The six-room suite on the fifteenth floor of the hilltop hotel was the same Barbara occupied last year when she stopped here enroute to her oriental honeymoon with Prince Ddivani.

At that time she was traveling alone, while Ddivani was in Seattle eluding process servers.

The honeymooners slipped hurriedly out of Reno a few hours after the wedding. Arm in arm, they ran from the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Hood, where the ceremony was performed, and sped away in Barbara's new tan limousine, her chauffeur at the wheel.

The couple's car, on the trip over the mountains and down the Sacramento valley, was preceded by a small coupe, driven by a lone man, the pathfinder and trail-blazer for the party.

Behind the limousine was another car driven by a deputy sheriff of Washoe-co, Nevada, where Barbara was a resident for six weeks preceding her divorce.

A large car bearing the servants of the houses of Hutton and Haugwitz-Reventlow, and piled high with baggage, brought up the rear.

Highway patrolmen were instructed to keep a paternal eye on the caravan, which they did.

LESSON TO HITLER

IT IS beginning to dawn on Chancellor Hitler that it doesn't pay to outrage the public sentiment of other countries. Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, has received his permission to call a halt on the wholesale arrest of protestant confessional ministers. The confession is traced back to the foreign office, which has been hearing what other peoples think of Hitler's attempt to interfere with freedom of thought and conscience.

It is British sentiment, particularly, that the foreign office is troubled about. The British don't like it, and they are the only people in Europe who can be called friendly to Germany. The foreign office must work with them, if it is to work with anybody, and it complains that it is frustrated by the Reich's high-handedness in dealing with the churches.

The war against the pastors is only one of the blunders Germany has made. A warped psychology seems to have driven Hitler and his associates on to antagonize peoples everywhere who would like to be liberal and open-minded. The treatment of the Jews, the discrimination against American bondholders, the revival of the specter of ruthless submarine warfare are indications of a gift for doing the wrong things at the wrong time.

It would be gratifying if we could believe Hitler has learned a lesson and henceforth will pay some heed to world sentiment. Trying to be independent and self-sufficient and all that has its limitations. We can't live in the world without showing some respect for the intelligence, the conscience, the rights and the feelings of other people. Unfortunately, Hitler isn't the only offender, although for the moment the most troublesome one. All can observe and heed.

OUR NEW MECCA

STATE and municipal executives who want their communities to share in the work-relief expenditures are wasting their expenses money by coming to the capital at this time. Plans are not advanced enough to make their visits productive.

This is from a Washington dispatch. In the spring, Washington is alluring. The temptation to visit there is undeniably strong. But the place has become a howling madhouse, what with the patriots already assembled and on the payrolls being augmented by hundreds of state and local officials who want their hunk out of President Roosevelt's four billion grab bag.

Contact with Washington there must be in these days when the federal government has assumed to do so much. Every town on the map wants money, preferably without obligation to pay it back and with entire freedom to spend it as it likes. That is one of the big dangers the government faces in the spending of the $4,000,000,000. All the restraint local officials can marshal and all the wisdom Roosevelt's aides can assemble are needed to prevent the waste and duplication that usually go with pork barrel expenditures.

Another danger is the over-population of Washington with mayors and governors, all of whom travel at the public expense. Spending somebody else's money is always a pleasure, especially when the destination is so pleasant a place as Washington. A little restraint in spending of this sort would be just as welcome to the taxpayer as restraint in increasing the public debt limits.

SECOND BEST FOR MASTERS

VOTING by members of the senior class of Princeton University on a number of interesting questions indicates that for the time being the young men are more susceptible to the influences of the present than those of the past.

It is doubtful if a few years from now, after youth has passed, they will be more impressed with the artistic abilities of McClelland Barclay than they are with those of Rembrandt. And it is highly probable that with the attainment of maturity they will continue to rank Noel Coward above William Shakespeare in the field of the drama. Perhaps, too, a more just appraisal will be given the respective merits of Kipling's "If," the Rubaiyat and Gray's "Elegy Written In a Country Churchyard," the order of popularity indicated in the seniors' poll.

In fact, considering the restless urge of modern youth, it is eloquently significant of their fundamental worth that the classics fared as well as they did.

What the country needs is a customer for a good five-cent cigar.

How America would worry about those killed by fool drivers if it happened in Turkey!

A sport car never will reach its highest development until manufacturers learn to nickel-plate tires.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Robbins Bros. circus gave two performances in Circleville to large audiences. Jay Smith, a former resident of Circleville, was reserved seat ticket seller with the circus and while here greeted many old friends.

Mack Parrett, Jr., was appointed official representative of the Columbus Automobile club in Pickaway-co.

Circleville high school won the Central Buckeye league championship at the track and field meet held at Westerville with 42½ points, against Westerville's 37.

15 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Metzger, of Kinderhook, entertained the members of the senior class and the teachers of Williamsport high school at a dinner party in honor of their son, Andrew J. Metzger, a member of the graduating class.

A delightful surprise party was given at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Raub in Circleville-twp in honor of Mr. Raub's birthday anniversary. A basket dinner was enjoyed by more than 40 guests.

A community gathering at the Washington-twp centralized school was largely attended. An elaborate program was presented on the closing day of school.

25 YEARS AGO

Burglars rifled the postoffice, a saloon, a jewelry store, grocery and barber shop at Shepard.

A fine collection of pictures of A. W. Elson & Co., of Boston, Mass., was exhibited at the Circleville schools. The exhibit consisted of large carbon photographs and photogravures of the great works of art in architecture, sculpture and painting.

The Muhlenberg - twp commencement exercises were held in the M. E. Church at Darbyville. There were six graduates: Clyde F. May, James Kneisley, Grace Radcliff, Bennie Grabill, Aldin Hill and Ivan Justice.

Carefree Lieutenant Valentine Preston, attached to a gunboat in China, in rushing to the harbor at Shanghai to his childhood sweetheart, Janice Eddings, who is sailing with her family to the United States, is frustrated when an attractive girl takes the last sampan to the liner anchored in the bay (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

ELEVEN MONTHS ago in Manila, Val had had his first introduction to Janice Eddings as a grown-up. His ship had just returned from North China and, on the memorable evening when he sauntered into the Army and Navy club with no hope that the dinner dance in progress might be anything but the usual stereotyped affair, he had been jolted to a standstill by the glimpse of an arresting stranger. Slender, golden-blonde, hazel-eyed, wearing a frock of filmy green, she had made him think of a clean, fresh breeze, of crystal streams in pine groves back in the States. Not beautiful, really—and he was strong for beauty—but even before he had recognized in her his childhood playmate, he had gone straight to her side.

From that first moment when, delighted to renew their acquaintance, he smiled possessively down at her, he sensed a challenge in this new, poised Jan; and he knew that although much time had elapsed, he had not forgotten his lofty indifference at the Academy. He had always found his line fairly efficacious but during that evening she only laughed at him. And something deep within him had responded joyously to her defiance so that he had resolved to conquer this adamant snow-maiden.

Now he smiled ruefully to acknowledge that both then and later Jan had eluded a flirtation. He had resented this baffling quality in her even while they had danced, played tennis, golfed and swam with the young navy set in Manila and in the Chinese ports where their paths crossed. But later, although they quarreled frequently and with youthful gusto, he grew to respect her as an adversary; and finally he drifted into regarding her merely as a play-fellow and a darned square friend.

That is, until this recent trip upriver when in the deck-watches of lonely starlit nights, Jan had been constantly in his thoughts. The day he sailed, two months ago, something inexplicable had happened between them. He had called to say goodbye, only to find a pale Jan, eyes softened by weariness, her pretty hair disarranged from a night and day vigil beside her ailing little sister, Mimi. It was a new experience to see Jan like that! She was wearing a clinging negligee of palest rose and never had she seemed so appealing nor aroused such tenderness in him. She was endeavoring to persuade a protesting Mimi to take her medicine, and he had seen her the night before, a little hunched and in no time at all, coaxed the youngster to swallow the bitter dose and then told her stories until she drifted into a quiet sleep.

Just before he left to catch the last launch to his ship, he had asked Jan to step out with him the night before he would return to Shanghai. Perhaps she was so tired her defenses were down, for when he slipped a tentative arm about her because she seemed completely exhausted, she had, to his pained amazement, relaxed against his shoulder for a moment.

"What a darling you can be," he had murmured, "I shall miss you terribly. Of course I'll save the date for you. Goodbye. And—come back very soon—"

Dazed he had stood like a stone image. Not because of her words. That wasn't it. But her golden head was tipped back so that she was looking up at him; she had seemed, encased by a shining brightness—her eyes were like stars—something had in his heart pound crazily and would not release his gaze from her. His easy, flirtatious manner had deserted him; he experienced a new sensation, something exciting he wanted to investigate and understand. But his ship was sailing. There was no time. Yet he had sensed that when he saw Jan again she would find an answer to the stirring emotion. And now, to his bewilderment and self-disgust, he had come back to Shanghai only to get beautifully plastered and, to break the date that had grown to mean something important to him.

"You always landed in the soft spots."

He was spared further stabbings of remorse when his attention was snatched to the passenger in a passing sampan, who had a familiar cut to his jaw. Flung up in an eager arm Val cried, "Hi, Brad! How's it to give me a lift to the Taft?"

The other man stared for an instant, and as recognition dawned he called back, "Sure will. I'm just on my way out there to say goodbye to the Eddings."

While the coolie maneuvered his craft in to the float, Brad Norris tanned young face—gray-eyed, snub-nosed, teeth spaced a little in front, like a kid's—beamed across at his friend. He, like Val, was of the class of '25 and in his mid-twenties; the sight of his boyish smile always swept Val back to Naval Academy days when they two were roommates waging the tough battle to win their commissions.

Not that those first tough months of plebe year were a pleasant memory. The hazing, added to the high requirements of the school, had galled Val until a moving home when he had stared out at a destroyer lying in the Severn and suddenly had resolved to quit the Academy flat, ship on that tramp as a deck-hand, and seek adventure and a quick time.

He might have carried out this plan had he not come in that afternoon to find his roommate in the depths of despair. Brad Norris was a shy, awkward country boy whose burning desire for a navy career faced defeat because of his lack of the fundamental education necessary to meet the formidable Academy course. Val had liked the other lad from their first meeting; and that day the sick misery in his friend's eyes roused not only his sympathy but also his fighting spirit.

It was laughable now to recall his theatrical gesture in offering to see Brad through the hard grind that lay ahead. It was funnier still when one considered that until that time he, Val, had been a pretty good academic flop himself. However, he had chosen to regard his assurance to Brad as a solemn and binding pledge. And after a four-year struggle, with himself as a paining pace-maker, they had won to their goal by the veritable skin of their teeth. Brad had later gone into aviation, but though they ran across each other only occasionally, they had not forgotten the bond of mutual suffering that had sealed their friendship, and that each had the other to thank for his commission in the U. S. N.

As the sampan came to the float Brad called, "Hi, stranger! I saw the Panny drop anchor yesterday and looked forward to seeing you. How are things up-river?" Val returned his friend's beaming smile and stepped down to settle himself in the small craft. "Swell!" he replied. "Ever since I saw you two months ago we've been tied up opposite one lousy pirate village after the other, giving the anti-foreign populace love treatments." His infectious grin lifted the corners of his mouth to disclose extremely white teeth. "Old son, did you ever have a low-down bum spit on you, and for diplomatic reasons not be able to take him a good sock in the nose? When the pirate mobs hurled socks and filth at us, we had to take it and like it. Boy! What a rotten job!"

Brad was laughing. "About time you had a sample of regular duty, Mister." He chuckled. "You've always landed in the soft spots. Look at you! Six years out of the Academy with only the first two spent on a battleship and the other four whiled away enjoying yourself on a destroyer in the Mediterranean and out here on the South and North China patrols. Pretty soft, I'd say."

"Lah!" Val countered, "a sea-going sailor works harder than any lazy aviator ever has or ever will, and don't you forget it! Honest to God, that's what I've been doing. But speaking of jobs, I have the unofficial promise of one that is tailored just to my order. Wait until you hear about this one! I have first chance at it. Paris! Can you imagine it after three years of guarding military supplies and being a target for snipers on the Yangtze and South China patrols?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PICKAWAY'S LOSS WILL BE OTHER COUNTIES' GAIN

EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

The late justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., made his reputation as a member of that august body by his "dissenting" opinions, and here in Pickaway-co a gentleman by the name of Wright, who is one of the three county commissioners, appears to have started on his own way as another "dissenter" by refusing to subscribe to the majority decision of the commissioners in the matter of federal relief for the unemployed of Pickaway-co.

And just as Justice Holmes almost invariably won the applause of the "man on the street" by his dissenting opinions, so also, from all appearances, has Mr. Wright, by his sensible refusal to join in the official county action of "biting off the nose to spite the face." Apparently Mr. Wright would prefer to have the commissioners continue to have some control over the administration of relief in this county, but he feels that the commissioners show rather short-sighted judgment in standing on their dignity when said "dignity" means a sacrifice of some $12,000 of federal money which has been coming into this county every month.

No doubt the merchants of Circleville have somewhat the same feeling about the matter. Saving one man's job (as it appears the commissioners plan to do by taking over the relief administration) would hardly balance the loss arising from a dozen others being eliminated from their jobs—or is one man's job worth $12,000 of good cash business in Circleville stores?

Of course there are two sides to this question, as there are to all questions of policy, and it is not fair to charge the other members of the board of commissioners with "pure stubbornness" in this matter. Mr. Rader and Mr. May are and always have been conscientious in their decisions, and have managed to maintain a level-headed business policy in a time of widespread "free spending." They have undoubtedly saved money for the county throughout their terms.

But they are not saving anything for the county in this instance, and it would seem that some very good reason is due the public in explanation of their attitude toward this federal relief money. $12,000 a month in a city the size of Circleville is no gift horse whose teeth should be examined too closely.

If there is no hope of persuading the commissioners to accept the allotment (and the administrative terms) of the federal administrator, then it would seem to be very much in order for the mayor and the city council to get busy and obtain for the city of Circleville its share of such benefits as would have come to the county. Here is a matter on which Mayor Cady, the members of council, the Chamber of Commerce, and all other organizations concerned with the welfare of the community, should see eye to eye.

If it is the commissioners' feeling that the money is for the relief of the city resident anyway, then there is all the more reason for the city authorities to go after it.

No doubt there are many angles to the matter which are not obvious. Perhaps there are many questions, and many answers which do not agree. The commissioners probably have their own very good reasons for their action.

But on one point at least there can be no argument. This federal relief money will come from federal taxes, paid by everyone in the United States, including residents of this county; and if Pickaway-co refuses to accept the allotment of federal relief funds which represents a return to this community of this community's taxes, then some other county or counties will be getting the benefit of that money.

Twelve thousand or more good American dollars each month shines up a lot of store counters in Circleville.

Everyone likes to see the commissioners stand on their "rights of office" as representatives of the people of this county, but certainly as official managers of this commonwealth they owe the stockholders a thorough explanation of their refusal to let $12,000 come into the community every month.

Conditions in Pickaway-co, due to natural causes and government farm aid, are probably a great deal better than in most sections of the country—but they are not so good that the merchants of Circleville enjoy an official thumbing of the nose at $12,000 a month.

Let us all hope that the commissioners will see fit to agree with their own dissent—and co-operate with the federal government's administrator. They will find that a great many people will agree with them, if they will agree with Mr. Wright on this important matter.

AN AGED QUESTION

The child took a long look at the old man, and asked, "Were you in the ark, grandpa, when the flood came?"

"No, certainly not, my child," replied the aged man. "Then why weren't you drowned?" asked the child.

This is not the argument of an "agitator" nor the complaint of "discontented unemployed." It is not a matter of allowing the "unemployed to run the court house." It is a matter of simple common sense, for the commissioners to co-operate with the government for the sake of such welfare as can be obtained for this community.

Not to do so certainly requires an explanation that will convince the employers and employees of the community, as well as the unemployed; and failure to do so certainly should call for some action by the city government, and this in spite of any general belief that the federal government does not do business with cities as units of administration.

How Young Child's Diet May Aid Health of Teeth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE MOST valuable contributions to medical progress of late years have been made in the field of infant nutrition. Most valuable because practical and real, and not theoretical, and because they have saved humanity at the source.

The ways we have of determining whether nutrition is improved are various. One good index is the teeth. A few years ago, in a large children's hospital associated with a state university, one of the physicians was so impressed with the fact that the teeth of the children showed a hardening, whereas they had previously been soft. It was curious that these children were diabetic, and the reason for the result was apparently due to the fact that their diet had been very carefully selected in order to make it "complete." Nutritionists now use the words "complete diet" to indicate a diet which has all the necessary elements for growth and health in it.

There are a number of complete diets which will arrest tooth decay, some high and some low in fat, and others high and low in sugar. Arrested tooth decay has been observed with such regularity when the diet has been well controlled, that some physicians are confident that healthy teeth can be produced in all instances by dietary means alone. Most of us, and certainly most dentists, however, are unwilling to say that cleanliness is not also necessary. The tooth brush and tooth paste and the tooth brush drill are still part of the health program.

While various people have emphasized one or the other element in the diet as affecting tooth health and decay, the consensus is that there is no single food deficiency responsible for tooth decay, and the individual nutritional factor should not receive undue emphasis. In other words, a general, well-balanced diet will make healthy teeth.

Vitamin D milk is certainly one of the substances which is responsible for the prevention of tooth decay. There are many forms of Vitamin D milk on the market, nearly any one of them as good as the other so long as they are approved by the Certified Milk Producers Association of America. The so-called "fortified" Vitamin D milk has not been found, according to a well-known pediatrician of my acquaintance, to be any better than the other certified Vitamin D milks.

Another portion of the body which is receiving attention from a nutritional standpoint, is the blood. Experiments have been done to show that animals living solely on a milk diet develop nutritional anemia, which can be cured with a combination of copper and iron. These findings seemed, at first, to be merely of experimental interest and children's specialists, in general, did not feel that they saw very much of this nutritional anemia, but careful check-ups of large children's clinics have shown that in a large number of cases the blood is deficient, and this deficiency is rectified by the use of copper and iron salts.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

The identity of the "man of the mystery, the guy with the black-smoked glasses" has been revealed; and, although he doesn't wear the glasses and his life is an open book, he's still the man of mystery. His name is Charles Belden, and the mystery is "A Shot In The Dark," the Chesterfield picture, which is now showing at the Circle Theatre. Belden, who wrote this screen play which is an adaptation of Clifford Orr's novel and "College Humor" serial, "The Dartmouth Murders," is also responsible for the authorship of three other well-known mystery stories, "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," "Dr. X," and "The Ghost Walks." Charles Starrett and Marion Shilling have leading roles in Belden's latest thrill melodrama.

Glenda Farrell, appearing in the Barbara Stanwyck starring film for Warner Bros., "The Secret Bride," which comes to the Grand Theatre is an expert rifle shot. She won a contest recently staged at the Warner Bros. Studios. In "The Secret Bride," she has the role of a pretty stenographer—murder suspect.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The haunting strains of Johann Strauss' Viennese waltzes are heard again in the LeRoy Prinz "Viennese" dance sequence, one of the highspots of Paramount's "All the King's Horses," starring Carl Brisson and Mary Ellis at the Cliftona theatre tonight. "The Viennese," a fox-trot with waltz graces, is Prinz's contribution to the return of grace and beauty in dancing and his challenge to the jazzy, jerky awkward steps which have prevailed for so long and which, Prinz believes, are now on the wane.

Elaborately staged with morrowed floors, revolving columns and a perfectly trained Hollywood chorus, the Viennese chorus features Carl Brisson and Rosita, feminine half of the famous Ramon and Rosita team, as its principals.

MAJOR LOOP
POWER WEST

National League Western
Teams Gain In East; American West Best

NEW YORK, May 15.—Judging by the results of the first swings around both circuits, ending today, the balance of power in both major leagues would seem to lie in the west.

Battling through the eastern half of the National league, the Cubs, Cardinals, pirates and Reds, have a record of 17 won and 15 lost. Only the Reds finished in 'the red, the others won more than they lost.

Since even a pennant-winning club is well-satisfied to break even on the road, it must be admitted that the three strong western clubs made a great showing.

The Giants and Dodgers were more than able to hold their own against the invaders but the Phils and Braves were woefully weak.

Sox Rejuvenated

For years past the National has been a better balanced league than the younger rival but events to date indicate the American may be the better balanced circuit this year. This is due in part to the fact that the Yankees have ceased to dominate and the White Sox have happily abandoned their pushover role.

Not one eastern club managed to do better than break even in the west, the White Sox, Indians, Browns and Tigers winning 16 from them while losing only 12.

These intersectional games produced eight shut-outs equally divided between the two leagues. In the National there were twelve games where the loser got only one run and a half a dozen others in which the loser made but two. In the American four games would up with the losing team getting only a single score.

There were only three games in the majors yesterday and western clubs won them all. The Pirates walloped the Phillies, 8 to 1, with his slugging mates making life easy and pleasant for Lefty Birk-of.

Mel Harder let the Senators down with three hits, the Indians winning, 4 to 2, on Trosky's homer off Whitehill with two aboard, and the Tigers walloped a bunch of Yankee pitchers who were wild and ineffective, 10 to 4.

Bass Placed in Closed
District of Darby Creek

The spring distribution of fish for Ohio lakes and streams by the Division of Conservation includes breeder fish from Lake Erie. The streams will be posted and closed to fishing for a distance of one mile above and one mile below the point where the fish are planted.

A consignment of breeder fish for Pickaway-co arrived Tuesday. They were liberated in Darby creek in Jackson-twp. The consignment consisted of 40 smallmouth and 80 rock bass. The closed area in Darby creek is from the Dewey Park bridge up stream to 1 mile above the iron bridge at Fox.

All fishermen are requested to cooperate with the Division of Conservation in "the program for better fishing," by not disturbing the closed areas where fish were planted, until the waters are opened for fishing July 1st. The Division of Conservation has carefully selected and mapped out the waters to be stocked that the breeders may be placed where they will have suitable habitat and bring greatest results in the program for more fish and better fishing in Ohio.

The following local sportsmen assisted Conservation Officer Fred Harlow and Protector Clarence Francis in planting the fish when they arrived: Robert Wolfe, C. E. Roof and H. E. Betz.

CHICAGO, May 15.—With a 13 to 3 win over Purdue boosting the Maroons' victory string to six, the University of Chicago baseball team was well out in front today in the Western conference race.

Defeated only once, the Maroons next meet Indiana at Bloomington on Friday.

ASHVILLE NINE

Strong Columbus Outfit to Invade County Town; Koterba

Fifteen husky Columbus policemen are scheduled to invade Ashville Community park Sunday afternoon in a central Ohio league game. The bluecoats will battle the strong Ashville team.

The police have what is reputed to be the hardest hitting team in the circuit and comes to Ashville undefeated.

Bill Ward, bullpen catcher for the Red Birds last season, will catch for the policemen with either Thomas or Butler, veterans, hurling. Both moundsmen have had several years professional experience.

Other stars on the police nine include Bill Grogan, first baseman; Red Koblenz, Curt Long and King Thompson, infielders; Klein-line, Gardner and Buschman, outfielders.

Meier Must Be Right

Art Meier, stellar Ashville hurler, will have to be in real form to hope to stop the policemen and must be bearing down all the way. A victory over the police would put Ashville in the favorite's spot for the league gon-falon.

Andy Harris, Shadeville youth and star Ashville outfielder, will be out of the lineup Sunday confined to his home with a severe case of quinsy. He will probably be replaced by Ansel Roof, slugging South Bloomfield youngster.

Chuck Koterba Signs

Manager George Stoker, of Ashville, announces that Chuck Koterba, one of the classiest infielders in central Ohio, has again signed a contract and will be

NRA CONTEST AGAIN IS HOT; SENATE VOTES

House Expected to Ignore Vote Limiting Measure to April 1, 1936

WASHINGTON, May 15—In the face of a rising Senate vote, House leaders today indicated they will make a fight for a two-year extension of NRA as requested by President Roosevelt. The battle was shifted to the House when the Senate late yesterday, in a burst of speed, passed the Clark resolution curtailing NRA and extending it until April 1, 1936. There was not even a record vote.

Accompanying Senate passage was a warning from Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate finance committee, that the Senate will reject a House two-year extension bill.

Caught unawares by the startling speed of the Senate, which approved the measure in two hours, House Democrats on the ways and means committee were called into a secret caucus with Charles West, President Roosevelt's liaison officer. Postponing a final decision, the committee members tentatively agreed to hold extensive hearings on the bill and to fight to extend the NRA beyond the 1936 elections.

Other provisions of the Clark resolution are expected to be accepted by the administration. They include:

- 1. Bars price-fixing under codes except in codes for mineral resource industries which already have these provisions.
- 2. Limits codes to interstate businesses.
- 3. Fixes 30-day period in which President Roosevelt could revise code structures.

House leaders were angered over the pointed statements of Senator Harrison. He warned that any effort to extend the NRA two more years might cause its expiration date, June 16.

"If the house changes the time extension, we will send the bill right back to the house without taking any action on it," he said.

Rep. McCormack (D) of Massachusetts retorted: "That is contrary to the spirit under which Congress operates and if pursued on every piece of legislation would defeat the purpose of representative government."

Starting Thursday and continuing through Saturday the Southern Ohio Electric Co. will hold an appliance show at its office on E. Main-st.

It might be called a "Home Appliance" show in action as factory representatives will be there to demonstrate the many electrical appliances such as washers, cleaners, radios, refrigerators, ranges, ironers and other small articles.

This show would be of interest to electrical appliance users for all the newest appliances will be shown and demonstrated and any information desired will be given by the factory representatives.

A gift will be given to all who attend the show.

AVIATOR, TWO AIDES NEARLY PERISH IN SEA

Kingsford-Smith, Navigator,
Radio Operator Narrowly
Evade Crash

SYDNEY, May 15—The pluck of his navigator and his own skill at the controls today saved Air Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith veteran of Atlantic and Pacific flights, from a plunge into the shark-infested Tasman sea.

With one propeller missing and a second motor sputtering, Sir Charles landed at Maroot, New South Wales, at 4:10 p. m. after a terrifying battle 300 miles from Australia during an attempted flight to Wellington, New Zealand.

Capt. P. G. Taylor, his navigator, "Heroically saved the situation by climbing out onto the wing while the 'Southern Cross' was rapidly losing altitude, and pouring a gallon of oil into the sputtering motor," Sir Charles said.

All the while Radio Operator J. Stoenag, the third member of the crew, was flashing a series of SOS calls that brought several ships rushing towards the plane's path.

Louis Aviator
Discounting his own part in the drama, Captain Taylor gave full credit to Kingsford-Smith for saving the ship.

"When that propeller smashed off, the whole frame of the plane shook furiously," he said.

"Smith immediately cut the switch and stalled the plane, to keep the engine from shaking out. 'Anybody but Smithy would have crashed!'"

It was the port motor of his famous plane in which he had already made several crossings of the 1300-mile Tasman sea, that lost its propeller, and the central motor that developed trouble. The starboard engine did most of the work in getting them safely back to land.

They took off at 2 a. m. after taking a special cargo of mail for a King's silver jubilee flight. More than 30,000 letters were taken from the plane "Faith in Australia," which belonged to Charles T. P. Uim, Kingsford-Smith's former navigator, who was lost in a flight from California to Hawaii.

The "Southern Cross" cargo was jettisoned when the motor failed.

"It's all right, they can't kill me," Sir Charles told Lady Kingsford-Smith when he landed.

He revealed that he had dumped the last portion of the mail overboard only a few miles from land as a last measure to keep the machine in the air.

The three fliers appeared extremely tired and plainly showed the strain of their ordeal.

Favorable Majority in Senate Assures Bonus Despite FDR Opposition

WASHINGTON—Behind the din and clatter of the bonus free-for-all stand out two salient facts:

1. That for the first time since the issue of immediate payment was raised there is a favorable majority in the Senate. This means that sooner or later a bonus bill will become law regardless of Presidential opinion.

2. That the Senate's action in rejecting the Harrison compromise and the Legion-backed Vinson bill in favor of the Patman measure unwittingly pulled Roosevelt out of a bad hole.

This seeming paradox is made clear by an explanation of what took place on this issue behind the scenes.

A group of leading Senate Democrats—chief among them Robinson, Harrison and Byrnes—came up for re-election next year. Privately they are opposed to the bonus.

But they face difficult contests. So they agreed on a strategy. They would climb on the bandwagon—but their kind of wagon.

They evolved the so-called "Harrison compromise" under which the veterans would have received a portion of the face value of their certificates.

This scheme they laid before the President. And although he is against the bonus, the Senate leaders understood that he agreed to accept the Harrison plan if Congress passed it.

Hence it was that when the Senate, much to the pained surprise of its authors, turned thumbs down on the Harrison compromise, the President found the chamber had done him a great favor.

It had saved him from making good on a promise that was not only distasteful to him but was of very questionable political value.

The compromise would not have satisfied the veterans and in accepting it the President would have laid himself open to the charge by bonus foes that he had bowed to political expediency.

Likewise, the Senate's turn down of the Vinson bill played into his hand.

He would have vetoed the measure. But because of its Legion backing rejection would not have been easy. Furthermore, there was a strong likelihood that he would have taken a licking in Congress, with the bill passing over his head.

The enactment of the Patman proposal created an entirely different situation. The Legion is on record against this bill. Also, it is first an inflationary and only secondarily a bonus measure. Which explains why some of the inner circle strategists are calling it "Roosevelt-Lucky Break No. 1."

Berlin Embassy

One factor in the delicate European situation which continually worries the State Department is the weakness of the American Embassy in Berlin.

Ambassador Dodd, ever since he criticized the Nazis in a speech, has been cordially disliked, gets little inside information as to what is going on. His staff is considered one of the weakest in Europe. The State Department has been looking around for a good career diplomat who can bolster it up.

Outwitted

With this "smiling" whisper Senator Bennett Clark to a colleague. "This is going to be good. George Norris is about to 'take' Austin."

As Clark spoke Norris rose from his seat. "Mr. President," he said, "I move the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. 2357."

"Ripper Bill" Giving Governor Many Privileges Filed in House

HANDED TO UIBLE

Would Amend Civil Service Statutes

COLUMBUS, May 15—Closing hours of the 91st Ohio General assembly's regular session were enlivened today by the unexpected introduction of Gov. Martin L. Davey's bill to give him blanket authority to revamp the state government for the announced purpose of economy.

Carrying an appropriation of $50,000 to the governor to defray costs he might incur in abolishing unessential jobs, bureaus and commissions and in consolidating overlapping governmental functions, the reorganization measure, termed the "Ripper bill" by Davey critics, was tossed into the House hopper by Democratic Floor Leader Frank Uible.

It was introduced contrary to the advice of several administration leaders who thought the House in no mood at this time to grant Davey the broad powers he requests. It was referred at once to committee with the hope of bringing it to a vote tomorrow on the floor of the House and Senate.

Besides giving the governor authority to make any changes he deems necessary in the administrative branch, the Uible bill requires all other elective state officials, the secretary of state, auditor, treasurer and attorney general to conduct surveys in their own departments similar to that now under way in the executive department by Col. C. O. Sherrill and his 120 trained office managers.

While the bill specifies that these additional surveys must be completed by a date to be fixed by the governor, it apparently does not give the latter authority to order a reduction in personnel or the consolidation of office outside of his own administrative department.

It proposes to amend the civil service law as it applies to the executive branch by subjecting its application to the approval of the governor. It gives him the power to abolish by executive order "unnecessary positions held by employees or officers and to abolish and consolidate bureaus, commissions and departments."

The governor also would be empowered to reduce or abolish appropriations made for any position.

HEAVY RAINS SET RECORD

Dr. Clarke Reports 6.45 Inches In 15 Days; More Than In 1913

Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather man, announced today that more rain has fallen in Circleville the first 15 days of May than even at the time of the 1913 flood.

Dr. Clarke has been Circleville's government weather man for a number of years but he declared today that in his entire tenure of office he cannot recall any month in which rain has been so intense as the first half of May.

The total so far this month is 6.45 inches. The rains, while doing a lot to replenish the underground supply, have generally retarded corn planting by two weeks. Farmers are becoming anxious for clearing weather which will permit them to work their ground and get their corn planted.

Streams throughout the county are running bank full while several have overflowed into the bottom land. The Scioto river was just a little above the 8-foot mark today. Dr. Clarke reported.

RELIEF MEN ASSAIL IRWIN

COLUMBUS, May 15—A committee of 10 men, representing more than 500 unemployed relief workers, and the vice president of the Ohio Unemployed League were to deliver an ultimatum from Charles C. Stillman, federal relief administrator for Ohio, to the Pickaway county commissioners today in an effort to restore federal relief in the county.

A squadron of about 300 Pickaway relief workers yesterday filed into Columbus after "hiking" 26 miles from Circleville, the county seat, to present their arguments to Gov. Martin L. Davey and Stillman. These 300 relief "hunger-marchers" came in protest to the method by which the commissioners of that county were handling the relief situation.

Mention to Committee Gov. Davey promised them he would meet the relief situation of the county to his legislative relief investigation committee and suggest they make a survey of the actual set-up in the county.

Continuous efforts by William Truax of Columbus, president of the Ohio Unemployed League and spokesman for the committee, to obtain a promise from the chief executive that the commissioners would be impeached if further trouble developed from the situation proved futile.

Davey stated, however, that the state of Ohio would take no hand in the case except a possible investigation by his relief committee.

The marchers, having gained little in their conference with the governor, then proceeded to march to Stillman's office. Here they met with marked progress.

Truax presented the problem that now confronts the "marchers" to Stillman, stating that Pickaway relief rolls contained 725 families each of whom was to get $11.33 per month from the federal relief administration. They claimed, that under Howard S. Irwin's county relief directorship, they seldom received more than $1.50 per week.

The committee told Stillman they had the backing of more than 600 relief workers in the county for the dismissal of Irwin. (Two weeks ago, Stillman ordered William T. Utley, Cleveland, to replace Irwin but the Pickaway county commissioners refused to accept Utley and sent him back to Columbus.)

Stillman said he was willing to co-operate and would send anyone acceptable to the commissioners to replace Irwin, whose work the FERA maintains was entirely unsatisfactory.

The committee, comprised of Fred Wing of Deercreek-twp.; E. H. Rhodes of Circleville, William Caudill of Circleville, Mose Rutter of Circleville, Daniel Gilmore of Gilmore, B. O. Connor of Williamsport, George Seymour, Circleville, J. W. Tagg of Circleville, Ed Jones of Williamsport, and William Wallin of Ashville, averred that the county relief administration had received $500 in FERA funds to cultivate garden plots for the workers.

These plots, they continued, were never planted.

The Ohio relief administration then said, "If Utley is unsatisfactory to the commissioners, we are willing to send someone else, but we will not place federal funds in Pickaway-wo while Howard Irwin is county director."

Return in Trucks After promising to visit the county commissioners today to present Stillman's decision, the "marchers" were escorted to their homes in National Guard trucks furnished by the state.

During their stay overnight here, the marchers maintained they had but one sandwich apiece Monday evening and nothing yesterday until noon, when the city of Columbus furnished them with food.

The contingent came to Columbus with but four automobiles and two trucks to carry the women and children, the men walked practically all the way from Circleville here.

THREE CONFER ON ISSUE WITH FEDERAL CHIEF

Stillman Ready to Send New Director, Not Utley, Into County

OPPOSED TO IRWIN

500 Sign Petition of Local Director

Rumors were flying thick and fast in Circleville and Pickaway-wo today relative to the relief controversy with a Chamber of Commerce committee of three in Columbus this afternoon to interview C. C. Stillman, relief administrator, to learn what can be done to right the situation.

In the delegation were Earl Herrmann, Reed Shafer and Frank Lynch, all active Chamber of Commerce members. Their appointment with Stillman was scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Discussed By C. of C.

The decision to have a committee visit the administrator's office was made Tuesday evening when 35 Chamber of Commerce members and guests took part in a discussion of the relief question. Relief Director Howard Irwin, slain by Stillman but supported by the commissioners, was present and took part in the discussion.

A motion to have the Chamber of Commerce go on record in support of Mr. Irwin for re-appointment as relief director was withdrawn after discussion when it was decided advisable to have a committee investigate the difficulty.

Circulating his petition since about 11 a. m. Tuesday Mr. Irwin reported today that he had 500 signers urging his appointment under Stillman. "Farmers, mechanics, FERA employees, and in fact, persons from every walk of life are represented on the petition," Mr. Irwin reported. He also reported that none of the persons signing the petition are in favor of direct cash relief as advocated by Stillman. The relief director, who has handled Pickaway-wo aid for 10 months, expressed thanks for the support given him.

May Settle Question

It was reported with good authority that Burr H. Rader, chairman of the commissioners' board, declared Tuesday that "if the government is ready to step in and handle everything without the county having to expend any of its money, then let them go ahead."

Mr. Rader was at his farm near Ashville today and could not be reached for a statement concerning the report.

It is believed that is just what Mr. Stillman wants to do: send a federal director here to spend only federal money under the cash relief system. Unless Mr. Rader has been misquoted it is thought the entire squabble might be settled within a day or so with Stillman sending a new director here.

He declared Tuesday that he was willing to send a new director here suitable to the commissioners and that it would not be W. L. Utley, whom the commissioners rejected last week. Neither would the director be Mr. Irwin, Stillman said.

The question is: "How can Pickaway-wo get federal relief money without Irwin losing his job and without cash relief being put into effect?" The answer, "Not at all," Stillman is insisting that Irwin not direct expenditure of any federal money and that if a new director does come here cash relief will be put into effect.

Uses Many Outsiders

As far as an outsider directing Pickaway-wo relief is concerned, Stillman merely points to a number of other counties in Ohio where a similar system is being used. Out of the county administrators can be found in many counties.

Stillman in his statement that Irwin could not be appointed director said: "We have felt that Mr. Irwin was not functioning to our satisfaction, that's why we want another man."

Another angle crept into the controversy Tuesday when Charles W. Barrere, state examiner, and another examiner whose name was not learned informed Auditor General Short that he should pay attention to the situation.

MOTOR STRIKE AT END TODAY

2,340 Return to Jobs In Toledo; Others Agree to Accept Terms

TOLEDO, May 15—Peace returned today to the automobile industry.

The 2,340 employees of the Toledo Chevrolet Motors corp. plants who walked out April 23, signaling a strike that eventually threw 33,000 General Motors Corp. workers into unemployment, returned to their jobs today.

The Cleveland Fisher Body Co. plant, largest General Motors unit closed by the Toledo strike and Cleveland's largest employer, resumed operations. Only a few hundred men returned there today but Lincoln B. Seale, the plant's general manager, said the full 8,600 persons working when the plant closed April 30 would be back at their jobs by Friday night.

United Auto Workers' federal union members at the Flint, Mich., Buick Motor Car Co. plant, who were to have walked out yesterday, agreed to accept the bargaining terms of the Toledo settlement and remained at their posts. Olat Hansen, union president, said the union there will open negotiations with the company management for readjustment of wages, hours and working conditions.

Other General Motors units in Norwood, O., near Cincinnati; Atlantic City, N. J.; St. Louis; Kansas City; Fort Smith, Ark., and Baltimore, all affected by the Toledo strike, either resumed operations today or were preparing to reopen, according to reports received here.

HOUSE SHOWING SPEED, TAKES UP FINANCE MEASURE

MILK CONTROL PLAN 'KILLED'; REFUND VOTED

Home Rule Proposals Defeated
By Close Ballot In Assembly

COLUMBUS, May 15—Breezing along at unaccustomed speed, the Ohio house of representatives today was to take up consideration of the big biennial appropriations bill.

After defeating the Carey milk control bill, the House revived and passed the Lawrence Senate bond refund bill, substitute for the rejected Davey bond act, and concurred in the Waldvogel Senate bill revising Ohio's liquor control act.

The Carey bill, pictured by the special House milk investigating committee as guaranteeing a fair profit to producers, went down to defeat by a vote of 46 to 70. Sentiment in the House appeared to be against enacting any legislation to regulate the milk industry, with the result that there will be no state control after the Burk act expires on June 30, unless the lawmakers quickly change their minds.

Could Refund Bonds

Under the Lawrence bill, which now returns to the Senate for concurrence in amendments made by the House, local subdivisions could refund maturing bonds, using sinking fund revenue set aside for their maturity to pay current operating expenses. Once defeated, it passed the second time out by a vote of 87 to 23.

The Waldvogel liquor bill, approved by a vote of 100 to 6, likewise must go back to the Senate for acceptance of numerous House amendments before it reaches the governor.

Most of today's session was expected to be consumed by debate on the $53,000,000 general appropriations bill. Word reached House leaders that the Senate will not act on this measure until the last day of the session, May 23.

It had been assumed no business would be transacted by

RELIEF MEMBERS IN "HUNGER MARCH" ON CAPITOL

Carrying American flags, several hundred Circleville and Pickaway-co relief persons are pictured resting on the outskirts of Columbus, O., prior to continuing their "hunger march" on the capitol.

The "hunger marchers", claimed that they had no help for a week. Leaders of the group were given an audience by C. C.

Stillman, Ohio federal relief director, who was recently installed by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins following charges of alleged graft in the Ohio relief administration.

either house after tomorrow and that only skeleton sessions would be held on May 23 for the signing of last-minute bills, but if action in the Senate on the appropriations bill is deferred until a week from tomorrow it will necessitate full attendance of House members on that day to concur in whatever changes the upper branch makes in the big revenue bill.

Increases Fees

Perhaps the most important amendment written into the Waldvogel liquor measure by the House was sponsored by Rep. Edmund Deibel (R) Medina. It increases all liquor permit fees $10 a year and allocates the increase as well as all profit made by the state liquor monopoly, to the old age pension fund.

Deibel explained that since liquor dealers, except wholesalers, will no longer be required to post bond which now costs them no less than $10, the increased permit fees actually will not be a new burden on them. In this manner he hopes to raise $200,000 a year for pensions, while he anticipated another $3,000,000 next year from liquor profits.

Republican Floor Leader Myron Gessaman spiked an attempt to write into the Waldvogel bill a clause designed to permit Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson, new member of the state liquor board, to hold that position and be a member of the Dayton board of education simultaneously.

Outlining changes in the liquor act made by the Waldvogel bill, Rep. Sidney Hesse (D) Cleveland declared they are designed to remedy a number of unfair situations; provide better enforcement and protect Ohio wine growers.

County home rule leaders suffered a severe setback when the House, voting 57 to 55, defeated the Campbell Senate bill, backbone of their program. It would have set up three alternative forms of county government for counties which elected to change from the present uniform system.

powers of the TVA so as to meet objections raised by the courts. As Norris concluded, Warren R. Austin, beefy, pompous Vermont, leaped excitedly to his feet.

"Mr. President," he began.

"Under the rules," broke in sharply Vice-President Garner, "the motion is not debatable," and then while Austin stood gaping, Garner, running the words together, continued—"All-in-favor-aye-aye-all-opposed-say-no-the-ayes-have-it—the motion-is-passed."

"Old" George Norris had, indeed "taken" Austin—and with a vengeance.

All over the chamber rose snickers at the latter's discomfiture. Even his Republican colleagues joined in the horse-laugh.

Austin had waged a one-man filibuster against the bill. The day previous he had talked practically the entire afternoon to prevent the Senate from acting on Norris' motion.

When the chamber quit for the day Norris appeared flustered. Austin left the floor with a cocky swagger. It was recalled for.

What he did not realize was that the canny Norris had adjourned and not recessed the Senate. That meant that when the chamber met the next day there began a new legislative day with a so-called "morning hour" during which motions to make legislation the business of the Senate are not debatable.

Thus, when Austin reappeared refreshed and ready to continue his filibuster, Norris quietly pulled the trigger and let him have it squarely between the eyes.

'RAY' TO STOP PLANES AIRED

Marconi, Inventor of Wireless, Working On Destructive Radio Ray

LONDON, May 15—Dramatic possibilities of a new type of aerial warfare, with planes rendered helpless in flight by destructive radio rays, gripped the public imagination today.

From Berlin and Rome came reports, having at progress in this field of experimentation. Utmost secrecy surrounded it, as carried out by Senator Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless, before Premier Mussolini in the Italian capital, but it was rumored they concerned a device to cripple airplane engines in flight.

At the same time, a Berlin dispatch to the Evening News declared a young Bavarian scientist had successfully demonstrated a ray capable of disabling the ignition system of an airplane engine two miles away.

The ray, it was said, is capable of hitting the entire magnet of an airplane within two minutes, and can be transmitted directionally in the manner of a beam wireless.

Any normal type of screening system can be penetrated, the dispatch said, and the only way to protect planes from the ray would be to fit aircraft with Diesel engines of the compression type without a magneto.

no county funds for office rent or for any other expense for a relief office here. "If you do," Short was told, "you and you alone will be responsible."

As a result of the information Prosecutor Ray W. Davis, while in Columbus today, intended to visit Attorney General John W. Bricker's office and learn if the county could pay relief office expense out of funds now available.

It is hoped by everyone, individuals, merchants and all that the sumable can be settled to the best advantage of all, so that the $13,000 sent here monthly by the government will not stop.

Relief School Closes

The county emergency school which has done much good for children of relief families below the school age was to be closed today, J. O. Eagleson, its supervisor, was informed Tuesday afternoon.

Between 30 and 50 children have received many advantages they would not have obtained had the school not been in operation.

In addition to Mr. Eagleson two teachers and a nurse have been employed. The project was financed by the FERA.

ABLE CAST SEEN IN SENIOR PLAY

A drama written for professional players, a splendid cast ably directed, and effective scenery—all will blend together to make "The Youngest" (Senior class play) one of the best dramas ever presented from the stage of Circleville high school.

This three-act comedy, which will be presented Thursday and Friday at 8 o'clock in the C. H. S. auditorium, was produced on Broadway several years ago and had a successful run.

From the pen of Philip Barry, this play describes the trials and tribulations of the youngest who is down trodden by members of his family.

The stage crew has worked hard to make the setting come up to the high standard of the play.

LAMSON PREPARES FOR THIRD TRIAL

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 15—

"There will be no compromise," his eyes flashing, David A. Lamson made that statement in his cell today, announcing he would put his life at stake again before a jury rather than enter into a "deal" with the prosecution for a plea of guilty to either manslaughter or second degree murder.

WHAT CAN SOUTH WIN AT HEARTS

IT IS MORE instructive, also more interesting to most players, to study the various possibilities of a difficult hand than to casually read only what happened as bidding and play went. No South player had higher than 4-Hearts on the hand shown. Most South players played the hand at 4-Spades. An opening lead of clubs defeated 4-Spades in the only case tried in one session of the Eastern tournament. Now what can be done at hearts, with an opening lead of the Ace of clubs.

and to readjust or abolish any appropriation made to any bureau, commission or department under executive control.

All powers and duties vested in an office abolished would be transferred to the head of the department in which the office existed or to the elective state officer in whose office such positions existed.

One section requires boards of trustees of all educational or welfare institutions supported in whole or in part by the state to conduct surveys with a view to reducing expenses along the line prescribed by the governor for the executive branch.

Those familiar with the reorganization bill put through the Indiana legislature recently by Gov. Paul McCutt said the Davey measure followed it closely in many respects.

Colonel Sherrill has promised to file his recommendations with the governor by June 1. His corps of efficiency experts, all loaned to the governor by their employers presumably at no cost to the state, has been at work for many weeks.

FOE HOME ROBBED

COLUMBUS, May 15—Burglars using a pass key entered the Eagles home, N. High-st. and stole $100 from an unlocked safe, police have been informed.

DAVEY SIGNS EIGHT BILLS

COLUMBUS, May 15—Gov. Davey signed eight bills today by the state legislature, including the R. R. bond act, extending the operation on fox, were signed today by Gov. Martin L. Dwyer.

Under the Richards act, fox may be taken between Nov. 15 and March 1. At present the season runs from January 1.

The Waldvogel state bill, approved by Davey, permits political subdivisions to contract for supplies up to $50 without having to require affidavit of NRA compliance from dealer.

Other bills signed by the governor included:

Rep. Carey's relating to the employment of county health officers.

Sen. Hunter—permitting levies on the ten-mill limitation for municipalities to improve the business in Ohio by letter or otherwise unless licensed in this state.

Sen. Waldvogel—requiring all public work projects to be supervised by professional civil engineers.

Sen. Mathews—empowering the superintendent of insurance and his assistant to administer oaths and compel attendance of witnesses.

Sen. Mathews—preventing life insurance companies from doing business in Ohio by letter or otherwise unless licensed in this state.

Sen. Waldvogel—broadening the field of investments for life insurance companies.

RECORD SWIM ATTEMPT—MELEBOURNE. To swim three miles or more a day for a year is the strange record sought by Geoffrey Gilliam, a young Victorian swimmer. There has been much argument as to whether what Gilliam is trying is beyond the limit of human endurance. He has just completed the first three weeks and is perfectly fit.

beats best mark ever set by any closed car

NEWS FLASH—Muroc Lake, Cal., April 13—36 official A.A.A. records broken by a stock Hudson Eight. Top speed—over 93 miles an hour for five miles. Average speed—over 85 miles an hour for 1000 miles and beyond. A clean sweep of every record in its class up to and including 1000 miles and 3000 kilometers, and four unlimited class closed car records. Electrical timing correct to a millionth part of a second and every record certified by American Automobile Association.

Here's what it means to you. Probably you'll never care to drive a car five miles at 93 miles an hour. Yet, it means a lot to you to have a car that can go that fast—to shoot out of traffic tangles or flash you out ahead on the highway.

It isn't likely you'll want to drive a thousand-mile stretch at 85 miles an hour, but you do want a car with the fine engineering, power and ruggedness it takes to do this. Ordinary driving is no work at all for a car like this.

That's what it means to own a Hudson—smoother miles, more enjoyable miles—plus ruggedness and gasoline economy that make those miles cost less. You can see and drive an exact duplicate of this record-breaking Hudson Eight at any Hudson showroom. You can also see the complete list of these 36 new records, and scores of others held by Hudson-built cars. Take the wheel today and discover what this record-breaking performance means to you.

Evelyn Adkins, Ralph Morris
Wed at Bride's Home Tuesday

Miss Evelyn Adkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Adkins, W. Union-st., and Mr. J. Ralph Morris, son of Mrs. J. M. Morris and the late Mr. Morris of Columbus, formerly of this city, exchanged vows at 6:30 o'clock, Tuesday evening, at an impressive home wedding.

Rev. Franklin McElreath, of Columbus, former pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal church, read the nuptials at the home of the bride's parents before an improvised altar of dogwood and candelabra in the living room. Only members of the two immediate families were present.

Mrs. Paul Adkins, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. Donald Morris, of Chillicothe, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride was attractive in a long white lace dress fashioned shirt-maker front with open collar. The buttons on the front of the waist were brilliant. In lieu of a veil she wore a coronet of real lace and carried an arm bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

A buffet supper followed the ceremony after which the couple left for a two weeks' trip south.

For traveling Mrs. Morris wore a becoming black Del Monte-Hickey suit with a white crepe blouse, white crepe hat and white gloves.

Upon return from their wedding trip they will be at home to their friends at 1559 Clifton-ave, Columbus.

The bride is a graduate of Circleville high school and attended Sullins College for Women in Virginia and Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware.

Mr. Morris is associated with the Bell Telephone and American Telephone and Telegraph Cos. in Columbus.

Barbara, Titled Husband
Honeymooning in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—Barbara Hutton, the $40,000,000 "five-and-ten" heiress who was transformed in a day from a princess to a countess, honeymooned atop San Francisco's nob hill today with her new husband, handsome Count Court Maugwitz-Reventlow of Denmark.

The titled pair descended upon San Francisco last night after crossing the Sierras in an auto caravan that swept in feudal style from Reno, where Barbara won a divorce from Prince Alexis Mdivani and married the count who had sped from Denmark to claim his bride.

The newlyweds, arriving in San Francisco in fog and mist, the curtains of their limousine shielding them from interviewers, drove immediately to the exclusive hotel Mark Hopkins, where they had reserved a palatial suite.

Crowd Kept Back
The count and his dazzling bride laughingly hid their faces as they ran up the hotel steps while motorcycle policemen kept small crowd of curious at a distance.

A few hours later they appeared in evening splendor, to dine and dance until after midnight in the hotel's Peacock court.

A large crowd of friends and well-wishers greeted "Babe" and her count when they descended to the lobby.

Enroute to the dining room, the count paused to remark he would now pay off bets made with New York newspapermen that he would not marry within a year.

The six-room suite on the fifteenth floor of the hilltop hotel was the same Barbara occupied last year when she stopped here enroute to her oriental honeymoon with Prince Ddivani.

At that time she was traveling alone, while Ddivani was in Seattle eluding process servers.

The honeymooners slipped hurriedly out of Reno a few hours after the wedding. Arm in arm, they ran from the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. ... where the ceremony was performed, and sped away in ... the wheel.

The couple's car, on the trip over the mountains and down the Sacramento valley, was preceded by a small coupe, driven by a lone man, the pathfinder and trail-blazer for the party.

Behind the limousine was another car driven by a deputy sheriff of Washoe-co, Nevada, where Barbara was a resident for six weeks preceding her divorce.

A large car bearing the servants of the houses of Hutton and Haugwitz-Reventlow, and piled high with baggage, brought up the rear.

Highway patrolmen were instructed to keep a paternal eye on the caravan, which they did.

PATTERN 5354

What is more flattering than a soft crocheted collar especially if it is as lacy as these! The round one with the ruffled frill will add that touch that makes a dress alluringly feminine. The collar with the jabot is a very simple one to do—open spaces with stripes of popcorns for contrast. And the jabot has a soft fullness that makes it very lovely. The round collar will add distinction to any dress. The latter is effective in string; the other two are lovely in a somewhat finer cotton.

In pattern 5354 you will find complete instructions for making the collars shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

LESSON TO HITLER

IT IS beginning to dawn on Chancellor Hitler that it doesn't pay to outrage the public sentiment of other countries. Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, has received his permission to call a halt on the wholesale arrest of protestant confessional ministers. The confession is traced back to the foreign office, which has been hearing what other peoples think of Hitler's attempt to interfere with freedom of thought and conscience.

It is British sentiment, particularly, that the foreign office is troubled about. The British don't like it, and they are the only people in Europe who can be called friendly to Germany. The foreign office must work with them, if it is to work with anybody, and it complains that it is frustrated by the Reich's high-handedness in dealing with the churches.

The war against the pastors is only one of the blunders Germany has made. A warped psychology seems to have driven Hitler and his associates on to antagonize peoples everywhere who would like to be liberal and open-minded. The treatment of the Jews, the discrimination against American bondholders, the revival of the specter of ruthless submarine warfare are indications of a gift for doing the wrong things at the wrong time.

It would be gratifying if we could believe Hitler has learned a lesson and henceforth will pay some heed to world sentiment. Trying to be independent and self-sufficient and all that has its limitations. We can't live in the world without showing some respect for the intelligence, the conscience, the rights and the feelings of other people. Unfortunately, Hitler isn't the only offender, although for the moment the most troublesome one. All can observe and heed.

OUR NEW MECCA

STATE and municipal executives who want their communities to share in the work-relief expenditures are wasting their expenses money by coming to the capital at this time. Plans are not advanced enough to make their visits productive.

This is from a Washington dispatch. In the spring, Washington is alluring. The temptation to visit there is undeniably strong. But the place has become a howling madhouse, what with the patriots already assembled and on the payroll being augmented by hundreds of state and local officials who want their lunk out of President Roosevelt's four billion grab bag.

Contact with Washington there must be in these days when the federal government has assumed to do so much. Every town on the map wants money, preferably without obligation to pay it back and with entire freedom to spend it as it likes. That is one of the big dangers the government faces in the spending of the $4,000,000,000. All the restraint local officials can marshal and all the wisdom Roosevelt's aides can assemble are needed to prevent the waste and duplication that usually go with pork barrel expenditures.

Another danger is the over-population of Washington with mayors and governors, all of whom travel at the public expense. Spending somebody else's money is always a pleasure, especially when the destination is so pleasant a place as Washington. A little restraint in spending of this sort would be just as welcome to the taxpayer as restraint in increasing the public debt limits.

SECOND BEST FOR MASTERS

VOTING by members of the senior class of Princeton University on a number of interesting questions indicates that for the time being the young men are more susceptible to the influences of the present than those of the past.

It is doubtful if a few years from now, after youth has passed, they will be more impressed with the artistic abilities of McClelland Barclay than they are with those of Rembrandt. And it is highly probable that with the attainment of maturity they will continue to rank Noel Coward above William Shakespeare in the field of drama. Perhaps, too, a more just appraisal will be given the respective merits of Kipling's "The Rains of the Veldt" and Gray's "Elgy Whitten In a Country Churchyard," the order of popularity indicated in the seniors' poll.

In fact, considering the restless urge of modern youth, it is eloquently significant of their fundamental worth that the classics fared as well as they did.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE BELLE BURNS GROMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Caroline Lieutenant Valentine Preston, attached to a gunboat in China, in rushing to the harbor at Shanghai to bid goodby to his childhood sweetheart, Janice Eddings, who is sailing with her family to the United States, is trusted with an attractive girl takes the last swanboat to the other anchored in the bay (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

ELEVEN MONTHS ago in Manila, Val had had his first introduction to Janice Eddings as a grown-up!

His ship had just returned from North China and, on the memorable evening when he sauntered into the Army and Navy club with no hope that the dinner dance in progress might be anything but the usual stereotyped affair, he had been lured to a standstill by the glimpse of an arresting stranger. Slender, golden-blond, hazel-eyed, wearing a frock of thin green, she had made him think of a clean, fresh breeze, or crystal streams in pine groves back in the States. Not beautiful, really—and he was strong for beauty—but even before he had recognized in her his childhood playmate, he had gone straight to her side.

From that first moment when, delighted to renew their acquaintance, he smiled possessively down at her, he sensed a challenge in this new, poised Jan; and he knew that although much time had elapsed, she had not forgotten his lofty indifference at the Academy. He had always found his line fairly efficacious but during that evening she only laughed at him. And something deep within him had responded joyously to her defiance so that he had resolved to conquer this adamant snow-maiden.

Now he smiled ruefully to acknowledge that both then and later Jan had eluded a flirtation. He had resented this baffling quality in her even while they had danced, played tennis, golfed and swam with the young navy set in Manila and in the China ports where their paths crossed. But later, although they quarreled frequently and with youthful gusto, he grew to respect her as an adversary; and finally he drifted into regarding her merely as a play-fellow and a darned square friend.

That is, until this recent trip upriver when, at the deck-statches of lonely starlit nights, Jan had been constantly in his thoughts. "The day he sailed, two months ago, something inexplicable had happened between them. He had called to say goodby, only to find a pale Jan, eyes softened by weariness, her pretty hair disheveled, and a night and day vigil beside her ailing small sister, Mimi.

It was a new experience to see Jan like that! She was wearing a clinging negligee of palest rose and never had she seemed so appealing nor aroused such tenderness in him. She was endeavoring to persuade a protesting Mimi to take her medicine, and he had taken the spoon from Jan's tired little hand and in no time at all, coaxed the youngster to swallow the bitter dose and then told her stories until she drifted into a quiet sleep.

Just before he left to catch the last launch to his ship—he had asked Jan to step out with him the night he should return to Shanghai. Perhaps she was so tired her defenses were down for when he slipped a tentative arm about her because she seemed completely exhausted, she had, to his pleased amazement, relaxed against his shoulder for a moment.

"What a darling you can be when you like, Val," she had murmured. "I shall miss you terribly. Of course I'll save the date for you. Goodby. And—come back very soon—"

Dazed he had stood like a stone moved not a hair of her words. That wasn't it. But her golden head was tipped back so that she was looking up at him; she seemed charged by a shining brightness—her eyes were like stars—something made his heart pound crazily and would not release his gaze from hers. His easy, flirtatious manner had deserted him; he experienced a new sensation, something exciting he wanted to investigate and understand. But his ship was sailing. There was no time. Yet he had sensed that when he saw Jan again they would find an answer to this stirring emotion. And now, to his bewilderment and self-disgust, he had come back to Shanghai only to get beautifully plastered and to break the date that had grown to mean something important to him.

He was spared further stalling of remorse when his attention was snatched to the passenger in a passing sampan, who had a familiar cut to his jaw. Flipping up an eager arm Val cried, "Hi, Brad! How's it to give me a lift to the Tart?"

The other man stared for an instant and, as recognition dawned, called back, "Sure, Val, but I don't know my way out there to say goodby to the Eddings."

While the coolie maneuvered his craft in to the float, Brad Norris' tanned young face—gray-eyed, snub-nosed, teeth spaced a little in front—had glowed across at his friend. He, like Val, was of the class of '20 and in his mid-twenties; the sight of his boyish smile always swept Val back to Naval Academy days when they two were roommates waging the tough battle to win their commissions.

Not that those first few months of plebe year were a pleasant memory. The hazing, added to the physical requirements of the school, had galloped Val until a moving arm when he had stared out at a stranger laying in the Severn and suddenly a sea resolved to quit the Academy, ship on that truly was a deck-hand, and seek adventure and a high old time.

He might have carried out this plan had he not come in that afternoon to find his roommate in the depths of despair. Brad Norris was a sea-sick, nervous, and a bit of a burnout because of his lack of the fundamental education necessary to meet the formidable Academy course. Val had liked the other lad from their first meeting; and that day the sick misery in his friend's eyes roused not only his sympathy, but also his fighting spirit.

It was laughable now to recall his theatrical gesture in offering to sail through the hard grind that lay ahead. It was funnier still when he considered that until that time he, Val, had been a pretty sag academic for himself. However, he had chosen to regard his assurance to Brad as a solemn and binding pledge. And after a four-year struggle, with himself as a pitting pace-maker, they had won to their goal by the veritable skin of their teeth. Brad had later gone into aviation, but though they ran across each other only occasionally, they had not forgotten the bond of mutual suffering and that each had the other to thank for his commission in the U. S. N.

As the sampan came to the float Brad called, "Hi, stranger! I saw the Panny drop anchor yesterday and looked forward to seeing you. How are things up-river?"

Val returned his friend's beaming smile and stepped down to settle himself in the small craft. "Sweet!" he replied. "Ever since I saw you last month as we've been up opposite one busy pirate village after the other, giving the anti-foreign populace love treatments." His infectious grin lifted the corners of his mouth to disclose extremely white teeth. "Old son, did you ever have a low-down bum spit on you, and here on the South and North China rivers. Pretty soft, I'd say."

"I don't know," Val countered, "a seagoing sailor works harder than any lazy aviator ever has or ever will, and I don't forget it! Honest to God, this what I've been doing. But speaking of this, I had the most modest of one that is tailored just to my order. Wait until you hear about this one!" His young eyes flashed with enthusiasm. "The assistant naval attaché in Paris is ready to go to sea, and I'm about due for shore duty. Now, I ask you, what could be better? Lord, but I want that job, Brad! His face grew serious. "Deering of the department has assured me I have first chance at it. I want! Can you imagine it after three years of guarding military installations and being a target for snipers on the Yangtze and South China rivers?"

Val was laughing. "About time you had a sample of regular duty, Mister!" he chuckled. "You've not only landed in the soft spots. Look at you! Six years out of the Academy with only the first two spent on a battleship and the other four whiled away enjoying yourself on a destroyer in the Mediterranean and out here on the South and North China rivers. Pretty soft, I'd say."

"I don't know," Val countered, "a seagoing sailor works harder than any lazy aviator ever has or ever will, and I don't forget it! Honest to God, this what I've been doing. But speaking of this, I had the most modest of one that is tailored just to my order. Wait until you hear about this one!" His young eyes flashed with enthusiasm. THE (MUNITIONS) KING'S JUBILEE

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PICKAWAY'S LOSS WILL BE
OTHER COUNTRIES' GAIN
EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

The late justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., made his reputation as a member of that august body by his "dissenting" opinions, and here in Pickaway-co a gentleman by the name of Wright, who is one of the three county commissioners, appears to have started on his own way as another "dissenter" by refusing to subscribe to the majority decision of the commissioners in the matter of federal relief for the unemployed of Pickaway-co.

And just as Justice Holmes almost invariably won the applause of the "man on the street" by his dissenting opinions, so also, from all appearances, has Mr. Wright, by his scrupulous refusal to join in the official county action of "biting off the nose to spite the face." Apparently Mr. Wright would prefer to have the commissioners continue to have some control over the administration of relief in this county, but he feels that the commissioners show rather short-sighted judgment in standing on their dignity when said "dignity" means a sacrifice of some $12,000 of federal money which has been coming into this county every month.

No doubt the merchants of Circleville have somewhat the same feeling about the matter. Saving one man's job (as it appears the commissioners plan to do by taking over the relief administration) would hardly balance the loss arising from a dozen others being eliminated from their jobs. Nor is one man's job worth $12,000 of good cash business in Circleville stores.

Of course there are two sides to this question, as there are to all questions of policy, and it is not fair to charge the other members of the board of commissioners with "pusillanimity" in this matter. Mr. Raden and Mr. May are and always have been conscientious in their decisions, and have managed to maintain a level-headed business policy in a time of widespread "free spending." They have undoubtedly saved money for the county throughout their terms.

But they are not saving anything for the county in this instance, and it would seem that some very good reason is due the public in explanation of their attitude toward this federal relief money. $12,000 a month in a city the size of Circleville is no gift horse whose teeth should be examined too closely.

If there is no hope of persuading the commissioners to accept the allotment (and the administrative terms) of the federal administrator, then it would seem to be very much in order for the mayor and the city council to get busy and obtain for the city of Circleville its share of such benefits as would have come to the county. Here is a matter on which Mayor Cady, the members of council, the Chamber of Commerce, and all other organizations concerned with the welfare of the community, should see eye to eye.

If it is the commissioners' feeling that the money is for the relief of the city resident anyway, then there is all the more reason for the city authorities to go after it.

No doubt there are many angles to the matter which are not obvious. Perhaps there are many questions, and many answers which do not agree. The commissioners probably have their own very good reasons for their action.

But on one point at least there can be no argument. This federal relief money will come from federal taxes, paid by everyone in the United States, including residents of this county; and if Pickaway-co refuses to accept the allotment of federal relief funds which represents a return to this community of this community's taxes, then some other county or counties will be getting the benefit of that money.

Twelve thousand or more good American dollars each month shines up a lot of store counters in Circleville.

Everyone likes to see the commissioners stand on their "rights of office" as representatives of the people of this county, but certainly as official managers of this commonwealth they owe the stockholders a thorough explanation of their refusal to let $12,000 come into the community every month.

Conditions in Pickaway-co, due to natural causes and government farm aid, are probably a great deal better than in most sections of the country—but they are not so good that the merchants of Circleville enjoy an official thumbing of the nose at $12,000 a month.

Let us all hope that the commissioners will see fit to agree with their own dissenter—and co-operate with the federal government's administrator. They will find that a great many people will agree with them, if they will agree with Mr. Wright on this important matter.

This is not the argument of an "agitator" nor the complaint of "discontented unemployed." It is not a matter of allowing the "unemployed to run the court house." It is a matter of simple common sense, for the commissioners to co-operate with the government for the sake of such welfare as can be obtained for this community.

Not to do so certainly requires an explanation that will convince the employers and employees of the community, as well as the unemployed; and failure to do so certainly should call for some action by the city government, and this in spite of any general belief that the federal government does not do business with cities as units of administration.

How Young Child's Diet
May Aid Health of Teeth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE MOST valuable contributions to medical progress of late years have been made in the field of infant nutrition. Most valuable because practical and not theoretical, and because they save humanity at the source.

The ways we have of determining whether nutrition is improved are various. One good index is the teeth. A few years ago, in a large children's hospital associated with a state university, one of the physicians began to be impressed with the fact that the teeth of the children showed a hardening, whereas they had previously been soft. It was curious that these children were diabetic, and the reason for the result was apparently due to the fact that their diet had been very carefully selected in order to make it "complete." Nutritionists now use the words "complete diet" to indicate a diet which has all the necessary elements for growth and health in it.

There are a number of complete diets which will arrest tooth decay, some high and some low in fat, and others high and low in sugar. Arrested tooth decay has been observed with such regularity when the diet has been well controlled, that some physicians are confident that healthy teeth can be produced in all instances by dietary means alone. Most of us, and certainly most dentists, however, are unwilling to say that cleanliness is not also necessary. The tooth brush and tooth paste and the tooth wash drill are still part of the health program.

While various people have emphasized one or the other element in the diet as affecting tooth health and decay, the consensus is that there is no single food deficiency responsible for tooth decay, and the individual nutritional factor should not receive undue emphasis. In other words, a general, well-balanced diet will make healthy teeth.

Vitamin D milk is certainly one of the substances which is responsible for the prevention of tooth decay. There are many forms of Vitamin D milk on the market, nearly any one of them as good as the others so long as they are approved by the Certified Milk Producers Association of America. The so-called irradiated Vitamin D milk has not been found, according to a well-known pediatrician of my acquaintance, to be any better than the other certified Vitamin D milks.

Another portion of the body which is receiving attention from a nutritional standpoint, is the blood. Experiments have been done to show that animals living solely on a milk diet develop nutritional anemia, which can be cured with a combination of copper and iron. These findings seemed, at first, to be merely of experimental interest and children's specialists, in general, did not feel that they saw very much of this nutritional anemia, but careful check-ups of large children's clinics have shown that in a large number of cases the blood is deficient, and this deficiency is rectified by the use of copper and iron salts.

TOURS SHOW MAJOR LOOP POWER WEST

National League: Western
Teams Gain In East; American West Best

NEW YORK, May 15.—Judging by the results of the first swings around both circuits, ending today, the balance of power in both major leagues would seem to lie in the west.

Battling through the eastern half of the National league, the Cubs, Cardinals, pirates and Reds, have a record of 17 wins and 15 lost. Only the Reds finished in the red, the others won more than they lost.

Since even a pennant-winning club is well-satisfied to break even on the road, it must be admitted that the three strong western clubs made a great showing.

The Giants and Dodgers were more than able to hold their own against the invaders but the Phils and Braves were woefully weak.

Sox Rejuvenated

For years past the National has been a better balanced league than the American rival but events to date indicate the American may be the better balanced circuit this year. This is due in part to the fact that the Yankees have ceased to dominate and the White Sox have happily abandoned their pushover role.

Not one eastern club managed to do better than break even in the west, the White Sox, Indians, Browns and Tigers winning 16 from them while losing only 12.

These intersectional games produced eight shut-outs equally divided between the two leagues. In the National there were twelve games where the loser got only one run and a half a dozen others in which the loser made but two. In the American four games would up with the losing team getting only a single score.

There were only three games in the majors yesterday and western clubs won them all. The Pirates walloped the Phillies, 8 to 1, with his slugging mates making life easy and pleasant for Lefty Birk-off.

Mel Harder let the Senators down with three hits, the Indians winning, 4 to 2, on Trosky's homer off Whitehill with two aboard, and the Tigers walloped a bunch of Yankee pitchers who were wild and ineffective, 10 to 4.

Fifteen husky Columbus policemen are scheduled to invade Ashville Community park Sunday afternoon in a central Ohio league game. The bluecoats will battle the strong Ashville team.

The police have what is reputed to be the hardest hitting team in the circuit and comes to Ashville undefeated.

Other stars on the police nine include Bill Grogan, first baseman; Red Koblenz, Curt Long and King Thompson, infielders; Klein-line, Gardner and Buschman, outfielders.

Meier Must Be Right

Art Meier, stellar Ashville hurler, will have to be in real form to hope to stop the policemen and must be bearing down all the way. A victory over the police would put Ashville in the favorite's spot for the league consolation.

Andy Harris, Shadeville youth and star Ashville outfielder, will be out of the lineup Sunday confined to his home with a severe case of quinsy. He will probably be replaced by Ansel Roof, slugging South Bloomfield youngster.

HARDER, TROSKY BEAT SENATORS

CLEVELAND, May 15.—Two heroes stood out today in Cleveland's 4 to 2 victory over the Washington Senators at League park here yesterday afternoon.

Mel Harder, one of the American league's leading pitchers, held the Nats to three hits while chalking up his fourth win; five starts. Hal Trosky, "crown prince of swat" and one of the league's leading batters, smashed out a home run, his fifth, in the sixth inning with Joe Vosmik and Earl Averill on base.

With a little luck, Harder would have turned in a no-hit game. If his support would have held up in the eighth inning he probably would have turned in a no-run game. The Nats' three singles could easily have been outs. Travis' single in the second inning resulted from a bad throw to first by Roy Hughes.

Averill played a short fly by the same Travis in the seventh safely. He probably would have caught it had he wanted to take the chance. Powell singled in the ninth, a hit that was pure luck, landing as it did on the left field foul line.

CLEVELAND GETS LEFTY STEWART

CLEVELAND, May 15.—Trade winds waited unexpectedly over Cleveland last night and today Walter Stewart, Washington southpaw, was a Cleveland Indian, and Belve Bean, Cleveland right-hander, was a Washington Senator.

Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland club, announced the trade. There was no money involved in the deal, he said.

Stewart, who is 34 has pitched for St. Louis and Washington in the American circuit. Bean, who is 29, has been only with the Indians, serving as a relief hurler the past two seasons.

HOUSE IS HOT; SENATE VOTES

House Expected to Ignore Vote Limiting Measure to April 1, 1936

WASHINGTON, May 15.—In the face of a rising Senate vote, House leaders today indicated they will make a fight for a two-year extension of NRA as requested by President Roosevelt.

The battle was shifted to the House when the Senate late yesterday, in a burst of speed, passed the Clark resolution curtailing NRA and extending it until April 1, 1936. There was not even a record vote.

Accompanying Senate passage was a warning from Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate finance committee, that the Senate will reject a House two-year extension bill.

Called by West

Caught unawares by the startling speed of the Senate, which approved the measure in two hours and meant committee on the ways and means committee were called into a secret caucus with Charles West, President Roosevelt's liaison officer. Postponing a final decision, the committee members tentatively agreed to hold extensive hearings on the bill and to fight to extend the NRA beyond the 1936 elections.

Other provisions of the Clark resolution are expected to be accepted by the administration. They include:

1. Ban price-fixing under codes except in codes for mineral resources industries which already have these provisions.

2. Limits codes to interstate businesses.

3. Fixes 30-day period in which President Roosevelt could revise code structures.

House leaders were angered over the pointed statements of Senator Harrison. He warned that any effort to extend the NRA two more years might cause its expiration date, June 16.

"If the house changes the time extension, we will send the bill right back to the house without taking any action on it," he said.

Rep. McCormack (D) of Massachusetts retorted:

"That is contrary to the spirit under which congress operates and if pursued on every piece of legislation would defeat the purpose of representative government."

Starting Thursday and continuing through Saturday the Southern Ohio Electric Co. will hold an appliance show at its office on E. Main-st.

It might be called a "Home Appliance" show in action as factory representatives will be there to demonstrate the many electrical appliances such as washers, cleaners, radios, refrigerators, ranges, irons and other small articles.

This show would be of interest to electrical appliance users for all the newest appliances will be shown and demonstrated and any information desired will be given by the factory representatives.

A gift will be given to all who attend the show.

PILOT, TWO AIDES NEARLY PERISH IN SEA

Kingsford-Smith, Navigator,
Radio Operator Narrowly
Evade Crash

SYDNEY, May 15.—The pluck of his navigator and his own skill at the controls today saved Air Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith veteran of Atlantic and Pacific flights, from a plunge into the shark-infested Tasman sea.

With one propeller missing and a second motor sputtering, Sir Charles landed at Mizpat, New South Wales, at 4:10 p. m. after a scintillating battle 300 miles from Australia during an attempted flight to Wellington, New Zealand.

Capt. P. G. Taylor, his navigator, "heroically saved the situation by climbing out onto the wing while the "Southern Cross" was rapidly losing altitude, and pouring a gallon of oil into the sputtering motor," Sir Charles said.

All the while Radio Operator J. Steno, the only member of the crew, was flashing SOS calls, that brought several ships rushing to the rescue.

Discounting his own part in the drama, Captain Taylor gave full credit to Kingsford-Smith for saving the ship.

"When that propeller smashed off, the whole frame of the plane shook furiously," he said.

"Smith immediately cut the switch and stalled the plane, to keep the engine from shaking out. 'Anybody but Smith would have crashed!'"

It was the port motor of his famous plane in which he had already made several crossings of the 1300-mile Tasman sea, that lost its propeller, and the central motor that developed trouble. The starboard engine did most of the work in getting them safely back to land.

They took off at 2 a. m. after taking a special cargo of mail for a King's silver jubilee flight. More than 30,000 letters were taken from the plane "Faith in Australia," which belonged to Charles T. P. Ulin, Kingsford-Smith's former navigator, who was lost in a flight from California to Hawaii.

The "Southern Cross" cargo was jettisoned when the motor failed. "It's all right, they can't kill me," Sir Charles told Lady Kingsford-Smith when he landed.

He revealed that he had dumped the last portion of the mail overboard only a few miles from land as a last measure to keep the machine in the air.

The three fliers appeared extremely tired and plainly showed the strain of their ordeal.
